

Soccer

Soccer is somewhat difficult but the more you learn, the better you get. Soccer is a physical sport like getting pushed, slides tackled, or maybe a kick on the leg or anywhere. Soccer is a sport where you can get sore, injured, tired, out of breath, and maybe have that feeling of throwing out. Soccer requires lots of hard work like training everyday, maybe going to the gym to get better, going out for a walk or maybe a run to increase your stamina so you won't get tired during the game that is important to you.

To learn how to play soccer you can use coaches to train you and to teach you or get a buddy that plays soccer and that is a pro at it. In a game you can not use your hands but only if you're a goalkeeper. And the only time you can use hands is when the other team kicks the ball out to the sides and you have the chance to throw the ball to your team mates. The equipment is soccer cleats, shin guards, a ball, and if you're a goalkeeper you need goalkeeper gloves to not hurt your hands.

Soccer is hard to do but fun to play especially when you have friends training with you and being in the same team. Soccer can make lots of memories with friends, travel teams, school soccer, or maybe a pick up game. Soccer is like therapy to me cause it helps me calm myself out and not worry about other stuff.
