

The hero twins against the lords of death summary

In the story, the twin brothers were ready to play the game. But the gods of death wanted to do something else. So the gods put them in a dungeon full of bats. But the twin brothers were smart. So one of the brothers said "get out your blowgun" and the other brother trusted him and they both went small. After a while a brother went out and checked if there were bats still and suddenly a bat got the brother's head and took it to the gods. The gods thought they had won, but then the brothers came out and wanted to finish the game. But the gods thought it was over, but they gave them one more try. And so the brothers outsmarted the rivals and got their brother's head back and won the game. And the gods admit and take the loss.